

The image shows the interior of a modern grocery store. The ceiling is a prominent feature, with a series of curved, dark-colored panels and recessed track lighting. The store is filled with various products, including packaged goods and fresh produce, displayed on shelves and in bins. The lighting is warm and focused, creating a clean and organized atmosphere. The text "CASE STUDY" and "The Reesan Group" is overlaid in yellow on the left side of the image.

CASE STUDY

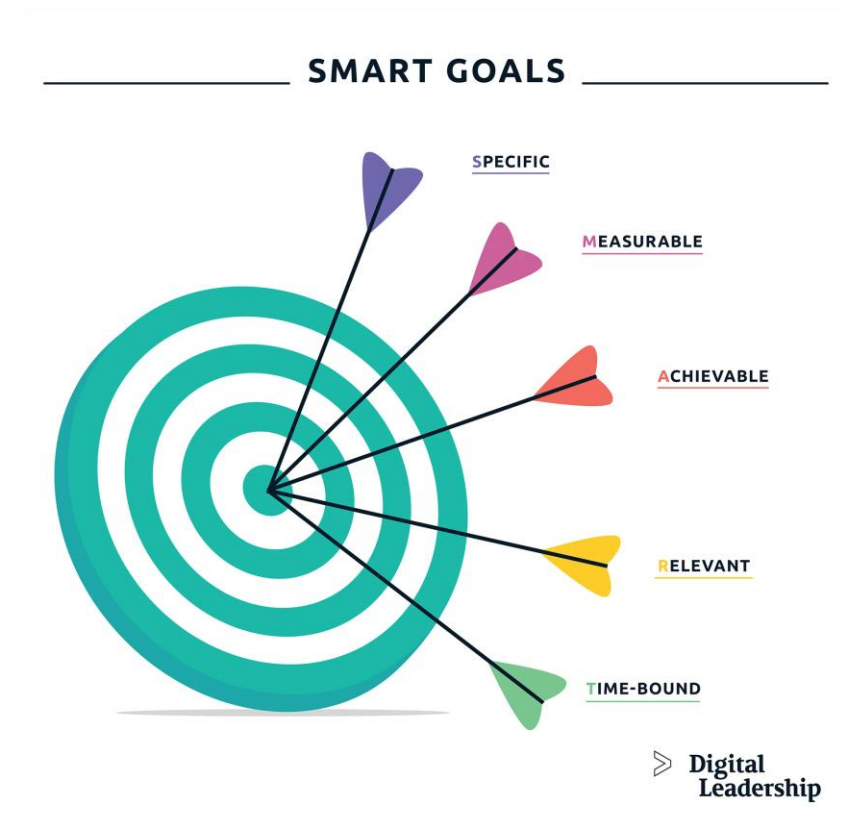

The Reesan Group

Dr. Rod Dilnutt
rpd@unimelb.edu.au

Learning Objectives

This week's lecture establishes the Industry Context of Enterprise Architecture

- Review the Business Context of the Reesan Group
- Identify business challenges
- Examine the impact of Legacy Platforms
- Develop Reesan's Business Vision and Target Architecture

About Reesan Group

A supermarket retail chain specialises in selling groceries (vegetables, fruit, meat, packaged foods, etc.), magazines, and stationery items

Goals

- Become top retailer in Australia
- Use ICT efficiently and effectively to manage future growth

Key operations

- Customer relationship management
- Inventory management
- Sales and marketing

Jupiter – Customized ERP Solution

Three major distributed applications:

- Jupiter/store
- Jupiter/warehouse
- Jupiter/head

Business Expansion

Unit Performance - Excellent

Competitive Threats

Born in the Cloud Niche players

- On-line shopping
- Low overheads
- Accessibility
- Home delivery

Logistics

- Supply Chain Legacy
- Distributions
- On-line Fulfillm

Market Environment

- Customer Expectations
- Ability to Service
- Accessibility
- Cost pressures

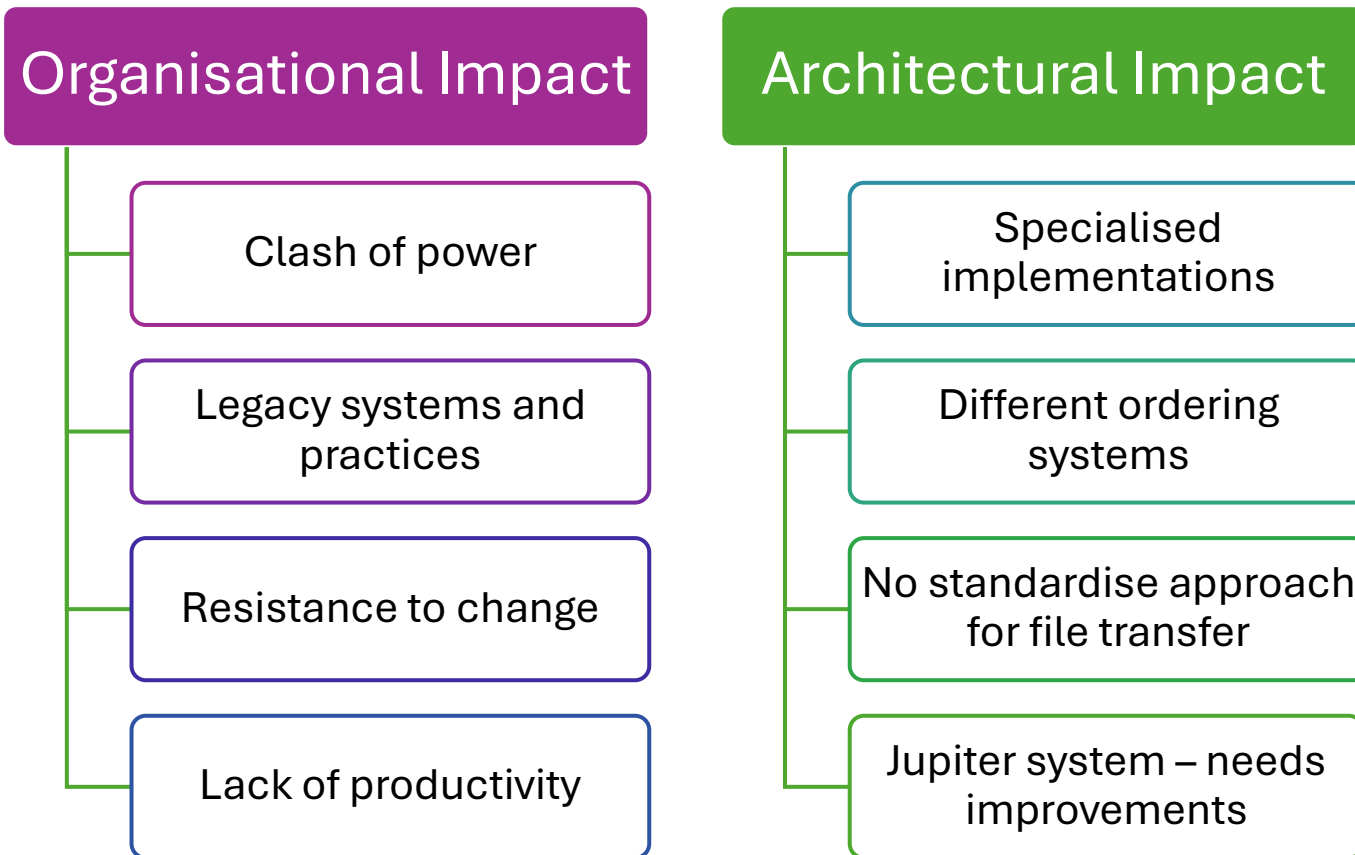

Regulatory

- Royal Commission
- Compliance Reporting

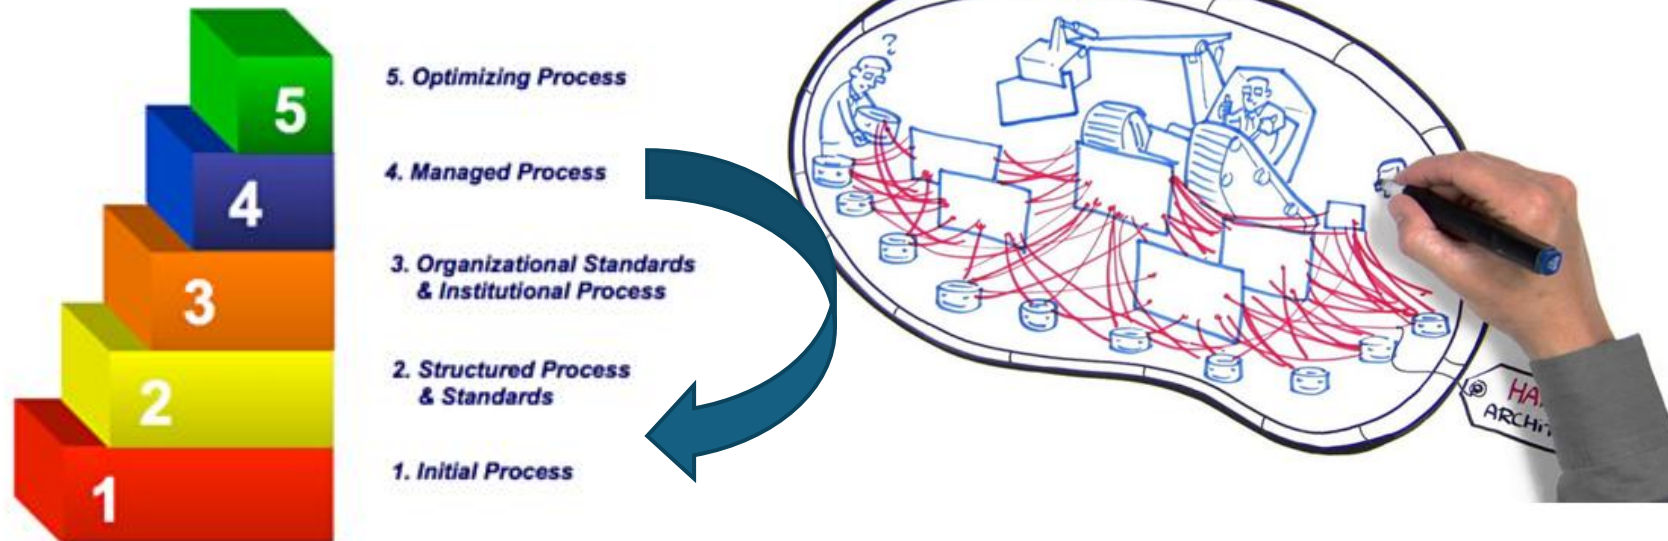

Impact of business expansion

The tipping point

Jupiter has turned into – hair ball architecture

Organisational maturity – declined from level 4 to level 1

The Board wants Answers!!